

FALL 2019 EVENTS

Welcome to the Fall Quarter. Please join us at the Luskin Center for History and Policy for an array of stimulating events intended for students, faculty, and the general public. Our goal is to marshal the power of history to effect positive change in society today.

Please join us for the LCHP opening event:

October 10, 2019

4:00pm-6:00pm | UCLA School of Law, Room 1314

"REPARATIONS FOR SLAVERY: HISTORY AND CURRENT DEBATE"

Ana Lucia Araujo (Howard University)

This lecture explores the notions of symbolic, material, and financial reparations and how a variety of social actors have demanded reparations for slavery and the Atlantic slave trade over the last three centuries in different slave societies and societies with slaves in the Americas. The lecture examines the recent resurgence of demands for reparations for slavery in the Caribbean and the United States.

Co-sponsored by the UCLA African Studies Center, the UCLA Latin American Institute, the UCLA Promise Institute for Human Rights, and the Ralph J. Bunche Center for African American Studies at UCLA

The LCHP "Reparations in Context" Series explores different global contexts in which reparations have been proposed as a tool of restorative justice. It seeks to link history and policy by exploring past cases and considering best practices in the future.

Other Upcoming Fall Events:

October 23, 2019

12:00pm-2:00pm
Bunche Hall 6339

"WHITE NATIONALISM IN SOUTHERN CALIFORNIA" A REPORT FROM A LCHP RESEARCH TEAM

The LCHP research group exploring the past and present of white nationalism in Southern California will present the results of their paper.

December 2, 2019

12:00pm-2:00pm
Bunche Hall 6339

"PUTTING HISTORY TO WORK" KENYA COVINGTON (UCLA)

Dr. Covington's work deals with the problem of spatial inequality in metropolitan areas in the United States. Her presentation focuses on two important policy-related skills: using quantitative data in policy work and effectively defining a problem for policymakers in a policy brief or working paper.

December 3, 2019

12:00pm-2:00pm
Bunche Hall 6339

"THE BORDER GOES TO WORK: ORGANIZING UNDOCUMENTED WORKERS IN 1970'S LOS ANGELES" TOBIAS HIGBIE (UCLA) AND GASPAR RIVERA-SALGADO (UCLA)

Tobias Higbie and Gaspar Rivera-Salgado explore the two decades before 1986 to identify the deeper roots of social movement innovation and immigrant political participation.
